EDS 411A Description

The goal of EDS 411A is to facilitate student learning, work, and progress on their MEDS Capstone project through lessons, activities, supervised and unsupervised project work, and peer review and feedback. Additionally, EDS 411A provides opportunities for professional and career development (e.g. presentation skills, writing and editing, client relations, team science, panel discussions, and conflict resolution).

Throughout the course, students will build on skills they have learned in prior MEDS courses to implement them in a real-world data science project, including:

- Prepare professional documentation for a data science project through the Design and Implementation Plan
- Practice project management and reproducible workflows using tools and strategies learned in MEDS courses, establishing clear expectations for group roles and participation, and with frequent updates within and across groups
- Continue to build real-world skills for data science projects through continued collaborative work in git, data analyses and statistics, data visualization and communication, and more

- Implement professional skills for data science careers including code and documentation peer review, team and client relations, scheduling and organizing tools & strategies, and conflict resolution & communication

A major goal of 411A is to facilitate and support student work on their Design and Implementation Plan, due to faculty advisors on the last day of instruction (Friday of week 10). See Capstone Guidelines for more information.

EDS 411A meets for 3 hr/wk. The expected total project contribution of each group is 30 - 40 hours / wk (~10 - 12 hr / group member). Most work done on MEDS Capstone projects will be outside of EDS 411A. This course exists to provide opportunities for co-learning and sharing between groups, and designated time for learning & practicing skills that are important across all projects. Additional work & progress on Capstone projects should be expected based on weekly discussions with the faculty advisor and/or clients.

Course prerequisites (official): None

Required textbook / reader: None (readings will be assigned and posted)

Bring to class: All students should bring all materials and devices needed for work on their capstone project to class every day. Students should also bring a notebook and pens/pencils to each session.

Course materials

Materials are accessed through the course website.

Course communication

Course communication will be through Slack workspace and website.

Assignments

EDS 411 is a practicum-style course that prioritizes work and progress on MEDS Capstone projects, combined with short lectures, guest visits, and activities to reinforce data science, project management, and professional skills throughout. Course requirements will be related to Capstone milestones, and will be assessed based on frequent in-class presentations, and group and individual self-assessments throughout the quarter.

Assessment and grading

Grades will be based on three components:

1. Course participation and project contributions (80%)
2. Biweekly group presentations / updates (10%)
3. Feedback from each group's capstone project faculty advisor and peer/self-evaluations (10%)

Access and accommodations

Please submit requests for accommodations often and early. It is never too late to apply for DSP accommodations. If you have any kind of disability, whether apparent or non-apparent, learning, emotional, physical, or cognitive you may be eligible to use formal accessibility services on campus. To arrange class-related accommodations, please contact DSP. DSP will initiate communication about accommodations with faculty. By making a plan through DSP, appropriate accommodations can be implemented without disclosing your specific condition or diagnosis to course instructors.

Code of conduct

We expect all course participants (including instructors, guests, and students) to be committed to actively creating, modeling, and maintaining an inclusive climate and supportive learning environment for all. We expect everyone to treat every member of our learning community with respect. Harassment of any kind will not be tolerated. Everyone is expected to read and adhere to the Bren School Code of Conduct and the UCSB Code of Conduct.
